If you want things for head wear, or hand wear, or foot wear, or any wear,

If you want things for house furnishing or for house-keeping,

If you want books or things for amusement,

If you want anything that makes home pleasanter and life brighter,

You think of Forbes & Wallace's, Springfield.

WHY ?

You buy in your little local store whatever it has that you want in a hurry, provided what you find there is good enough and doesn't cost too much. You give those stores the part of your trade they can handle. We have no wish to take it away from them.

On the other hand, here we are between Boston and New York—the largest store in Western New England—two and three times over, perhaps. You know just the thing you want may be had if it's a proper thing for the biggest store in Western New England to keep. You know the thing will be there and the price fair.

We are connected with what is called "The Syndicate," a concern involving seven houses and an annual business of twenty-five millions. This Syndicate has twenty-eight men in its New York office and twenty-four expert buyers in Europe—seven at the office in Manchester, England, five in Paris, eight in Chemnitz, and four at St. Gall. They are in constant and direct intercourse with the fountain heads of commerce and manufacturers in all parts of the world.

It is something to know that you have at your command a store that reaches into the corners of the earth, for whatever is worth your getting. No place so dark or distant that a fit thing stays hid. No made thing so trifling or so precious that it is not likely to be at Forbes & Wallace's if it is worth your buying thought.

That is one of the corner-stones of the store.

There is another stone, and a big, hard one. You are to be satisfied with what you buy at Forbes & Wallace's, or you can have your money again for the goods.

Do you wonder why many people far away have learned the way to us by mail?

Do you wonder that such a store has grown on such a basis?

FORBES & WALLACE.
